To DOJ:

You need to settle your differences with Microsoft, and the settlement, which we were led to believe was made, should be ratified. We users need to have Microsoft get on with giving us innovative new programs and services. There's plenty of competition out there. I use Netscape as well as Explorer; I use Word Perfect even though I have Word. Your drawn-out litigation and your many delays have cost us taxpayers millions, Microsoft stockholders billions, and users inconvenience and delay in receiving new product from Microsoft. Get on with it!
